MONDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1870.

THE PRICE OF SUBSCRIPTION FOR THE "DAILY NEWS" IS NOW EIGHT DOLLARS A YEAR, IN ADVANCE. Mr. Whittemore in a New Light. The laws of South Carolina are supposed to give the Governor all the power that, under any circumstances, can be necessary for maintaining peace and executing the laws of the State. When the constabulary force has failed to lay the monster which it conjures up, the Executive may call into service the whole National Guard, or militia, and may, for military purposes, take possession of all the railroad and telegraph lines in the State. The writ of habeas corpus is as a payment of the award. Were Tolbert living sheet of waste paper when domestic troubles rack the Commonwealth. In a word, the Governor, that peace may be maintained and | would be responsible. The assessment is the laws obeyed, has an almost unlimited made upon real estate alone—that is, upon control over the lives and the property of the people. This was thought necessary by colored man may murder a white man, or those who, during the past two years, have done us the favor to regulate the affairs of the county are taxed to repay the damage the State. It is true that Governor Scott that this Radical negro has done. Could has not exercised the plenary authority with which he is endowed. South Carolina has not been declared to be in a state of rebellion; the militia have not been ranged in line of battle; the railroads are more intent upon earning dividends than upon transporting troops. We have, then, to choose between two alternatives: either Governor Scott has neglected his duty, or South Carolina, in general, is in a condition of profound peace. The latter alternative is the of the county from which he shall be re only one that can be accepted, in the face of the re-election of Governor Scott by 33,000 tion so fraught with evil, so open to abuse, majority, which might just as well have been 33,000,000. This, par parenthèse! The the statute law of the State. people, in general, must be quiet and lawabiding or Governor Scott would have drummed up the militia, suspended the writ tion. Mr. Whittemore requires that the real

duces a bill in the State Senate, with a preamble which declares that "the laws are set | likely to have weight with a body which, in "at defiance," and that the officers of the "in the discharge of their duties," and sets forth, in nine lengthy sections, his idea of make no distinctions on account of class of what is necessary "to provide for the protec-"tion of persons, pre erty, and the public all their actions the security of property and "peace, and to tax real estate for the ex- the preservation of peace. what is known as the pomp, pride and cir-

wealth of South Carolina is thrown on the side of tranquillity, and against riot and disorder. And yet one notorious Radical in-

State are mistaker. Mr. Whittemore intro-

any citizen in the enjoyment of his rights, for any reason, shall be fined or imprisoned according to the gravity of the offence ; but the ninth and tenth sections out-Herod Herod as a specimen of partisan legislation. They read as follows :

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, &c., That any citizen who shall be hindered, prevented or obstructed in the exercise of his vested rights, or injured in his person or property, because of his exercise of the same, may claim and prosecute the county in which the offence shall be committed for any dama: es he offence shall be committed for any damates no shall sustain thereby, and the said county shall be responsible for the payment of such dam-ages as the court may award; and the real es-tate in the said county shall be assessed for the payment of such damages, the assessment to be made according to the rules prescribed in the act to provide for the assessment and taxation of property, approved September 15,

1868. SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, &c., That if any citizen who shall be hindered, pre-vented or obstructed in the exercise of his vested rights, or injured in his person or property, because of his exercise of the same, shall desire to remove from the county in which the offences shall have been committed to a more offences shall have been committed to a more offences shall have been committed to a more secure and peaceable portion of the State, the Governor of the State, on proper presentation and satisfaction of the ficts, and the necessity and satisfaction of the ficts, and the necessity of such removal, shall cause such person to be removed and settled upon the public lands owned by the State; and all costs of removal shall be charged to the county from which such citizen shall be removed, and assessed upon the real estate in said county as afore-said, and all expenses attending the arrest of persons charged with offences against the pro-visions of this act, as well as their prosecution and conviction, shall be charged to said county, and assessed upon the real estate in said

It is evident that one main purpose of this bill is to convince the Northern Radicals that there is a solid foundation for the stories of murder and violence with which Mr. Whittemore, Mr. Crews and their fellow-demagogues stuff the ears of the President and the Secretary of War. And, in the second place, it is intended to thrust upon the body of the people a responsibility which rightfully belongs to the State officials alone. We deny that there is any lawlessness or turbulence in South Carolina which cannot be promptly quelled by the civil authorities. And Governor Scott will sustain us in this declaration. But, admitting, for the sake of argument, that the woeful picture drawn by Mr. Whittemore is pre-Rafaelitic in its accuracy, his bill of pains and penalties could only be warranted by an absolute certainty that the whole military and civil power of the State was insufficient for the preservation of tranquillity, which condition of things might make it indispensable, as a last resort, to hold an entire community responsible for the wrong which its members had not managed to prevent. Every candid man admits that, in the counties most unsettled in feeling, there is no difficulty in making arrests, or in bringing offenders before the civil tribunals. The courts do not pledge themselves to convict every person who is arraigned by Mr. Crews, Mr. Whittemore or Chief Constable Hubbard, and this may be the head and front of their offending; but where the guilt is proved the 'criminals are.

and always will be, punished as they deserve. And where the officers of the law are obstructed in the performance of their functions, the Executive has the power to call to their aid the militia of the State and the army of the United States. The bill before us assumes, however, that the good sense of the community, and the militia of the State, backed by the strong arm of the general government, cannot insure the execution of the laws or protect the officers to whom their execution is entrusted. This simple statement demonstrates the absurdity of what Mr. Whittemore has ventured to pro-

Malignity and partisan feeling have far more to do, we fear, with Mr. Whittemore's bill, than a pure desire for the well-being of any class of people. It is not sufficient to go back to the old common law, and call to account a village, or a county, for the violence of a knot of desperadoes whose hand is against every man as every man's hand is against them. This principle is unworthy of the age in which we live, and of our boast ed civilization. Mr. Whittemore goes farther, and makes a whole county the hostage for any one man in it. No matter who that man may be; no matter whether he is actuated by revenge or an honest purposeif that man, perhaps the lowest of the low, interferes with any citizen in the exercise of his rights, or injures his person or property, the whole county is made responsible for such damage as may be done, and the real estate in the county shall be assessed for the he might kill a negro, and. for such damages as the court might award, all Abbeville the whites and not upon the blacks. A destroy his barns, and the white people of any proposal be more vindictive, more un reasonable, more unjust?

And the tenth section is more monstrous than the ninth. Under this section any man who is in any way interfered with or injured and who desires to remove to "a more secure "and practicable portion of the State," may be removed and "settled upon the public "lands of the State," the whole costs to be paid by an assessment upon the real estate moved. Even in South Carolina a proposicannot, we hope and trust, become a part of

We believe, moreover, that the bill itsel is in open violation of the State Constituof habeas corpus, and solaced his soul with estate of the counties shall be assessed for payment of damages and expenses under cumstance of war. There may have been sections nine and ten. The power to do this a negro beaten on this side, and a white does not, in our opinion, rest with the Genman beaten on that. But South Carolina eral Assembly, nor can it be conferred, by has a population large enough to account statute, upon the counties. The General for these incidental annoyances; and it is a Assembly has the right to provide by taxaplain and unmistakable fact, this day, that tion for the expenses of the State, and it the whole weight of the intelligence and may give the corporate authorities of counties power "to assess and collect taxes for "corporate purposes;" but we see no authority for the arbitrary and unequal assessments which Mr. Whittemore has proposed.

sists that Governor Scott and the whole The difficulty, indeed, is not to find argu ments against the bill, but to select those most well-being of the State. Governor Scott and the General Assembly have promised to color, to frame just laws, and to regard in were, on trial, and will be judged, two years The substance of this extraordinary bill is, hence, by their conduct upon just such questhat whoever shall endanger life, or obstruct tions as that which we have analyzed and discussed.

Judge Vernon.

This gentleman, who now fills so large a space in the angry eye of our Republican neighbors, and whose contumely has excited the ire of Joe Crews & Co., is personally a type of a brave and courtly gentleman. A Carolinian by birth, a man of strong common sense, a man never afraid of uttering his honest convictions, a man who will not condescend to do a mean act, no matter what may be the end subserved, Judge Vernon is to-day as true to the interests of justice and of the State as any of her citizens. He may have his social faults-who is without them?-but in all that constitutes fidelity to human trust, weighed in the balance, he will not be found wanting. Personally, he is not far from fifty years of age: is small in stature, graceful in address, suggestive in speech, and if not a first-class lawyer, he has certainly proved himself an upright judge. His misfortune consists in that he has not obeyed the behests of Radical pomp and power. He might have possessed vices that could be piled mountain high, yet been overlooked, had he ministered to the passions of Joe and his kindred Crews, but because he has dared to do right, obey the instincts of an honest citizen, and fearlessly perform the duty of an honest judge, we take it for granted that the axe will fall, and the place that knew him will know him no more. If the indignation bestowed on Judge Vernon could be visited on a score of the Radical officials we wot of, neither Joe Crews nor his borde would longer disgrace the political history of our State by an utter disregard of the decencies which should mark the conduct of public men.
